SPLENDID SPEECH.

Addressed of Hon. W. O. Davis Before Y. M. C. A. Banquet.

We give below the splendid address of Hon. W. O. Davis, delivered at the banquet given to the Y. M. C. A. Convention, on Friday evening, Feb. 22. It is a gem and will well repay perusal:

Our Raw Material.

Mr. Toastmaster and Gentlemen of the Convention:

I congratulate myself this evening that the toast to which I have been requested to respond, requires no labored definition or explanation. I have but to announce that "Our Raw Material," that is, the raw material of the Y. M. C. A. is "The Small Boy," and the subject is at once photographed upon your mind's eye, and the picture hangs in bold relief on "Memory's Wall." You know him; you have met him, in fact, you have seen him, therefore, you are perfectly familiar with his Majesty, the Small Boy. He is a Cosmopolitan, found in all countries, all latitudes and longitudes, and as far north as man has ever penetrated, and if the north pole is ever discovered, doubtless he will be found there, trying his level best to climb it, with his Sunday clothes on. Whether you find him clothed in furs, amid the eternal ice and snow of the Arctic regions, or clad in fig leaves and atmosphere, under the burning rays of the Equator's sun, he is the same paradox and phenomenon. How or why his life is spared, and he is permitted to reach manhood's estate, is beyond the ken of the finite mind.

The Small Boy that I have known was not the Ideal Small Boy, you read about in Sunday-school books, who secures his conduct by the Golden Rule, and has for his platform of principles the Ten Commandments, upon which he stands pat, whose conversation is "yee, yea and nay, nay," who goes about doing good, visiting the sick, feeding the hungry and clothing the naked, until the grim rider of the proverbial pale horse takes him up for a center down the valley of the shadow of death, and on to that mysterious country from whose bourne no traveler ever returneth. This species of the homo genus had cantered away or been shelved in books before I came upon the scene.

Now there is George Washington, whose birthday we celebrate to-day; he is held up in his youth as one of the ideal and model small boys who made a specialty of truthfulness, but I never met George, he, like the others of his ilk, had passed off the stage of life before I came on, consequently, any information regarding him is altogether hearsay, which is not altogether reliable. I have known small boys to possess hatchets and to cut trees and to be caught, and never knew of one, when discovered in the act, striking an attitude, like G. W., is represented as doing (with his left hand on his breast and right hand grasping the destructive hatchet and pointing to his handiwork, exclaiming with apparent pride, Father, I did it with my little hatchet. I can't tell a lie, and then to have his father fall on his neck and weep tears of paternal pride. That kind of confession and reception may have been conventional back in the eighteenth century, in George's day, but if one of my companions had been detected by his paternal ancestor, in my day and generation, engaged in the similar pleasing pastime of felling fruit trees with his little hatchet, the attitude and condition would have been entirely different and something like this (hatchet dropped behind him in the weeds, finger in his mouth and trembling, say, it blew down, or I didn't go to do it), and in the sequel, there would have been no homily pronounced on truth, no shedding of tears (that is, of paternal pride), or wasting of salutations, but a limb of that felled tree, in the hands of the irate father, would have served "to point a moral," and teach a lesson, that would make him tingle to think about in after years, and after the operation was over and his temperature had fallen to its normal state, he would steal out to the stump of that felled tree, and bury, in common sepulchre, his hatchet, and his faith in the story of George Washington.

Then there is another ideal boy whom we read about, and used to weep over, that embodiment and personification of obedience, that ridiculously absurd and impossible character, the creation of poetic fancy, little Casablanca "who stood on the burning deck, whence all but him had fled," etc. Oh, well, do I remember how I doted on little Casablanca in my youthful days, how I admired his heroism and lamented his fate. How often I used to thrill the school with my declamation of that poem. I recall to-night the commencement exercises (the last day of school), when I, a barefooted boy, chose that noble theme and arose before the eager, anxious audience, and gave to them my interpretation of it; how I worked my big toe into a knot hole, so as to give my body sufficient leverage and momentum, in order that I might sway with the audience as I swayed it. Now, my theory about Casablanca is, first, he was a small chunk of airy nothingness, to which the fertile and poetic brain of Mrs. Hemans gave a local habitation and a name, or, second, if mistaken in the first conjecture and he really did exist and had the experience with which he is credited, then that the reason he didn't leave that burning ship, was, he couldn't swim, and true to the nature of the small boy, showed, even in death, his aversion to water, or, third, that the paraphrase is correct, which runs:

"The boy stood on the burning deck Eating peanuts by the peck, He would not go Because he loved them so."

Although my thirsty soul panted for a "cold one," even as the harpist for the water brook," yet it only found in his stead, his erring mother, the real boy—whom I have met on his native heath, and in his neighbors' fruit trees—with whom I have gambled on the green and gambled (with marbles) on the street; with whom I have gathered nuts by day, and water-melons by night; who has chewed my gum, and whose gum I have chewed; with whose nose my fist has frequently come into contact and vice versa, especially vice versa. I can almost see the stars now that I saw so plainly then; I have, in fact, paddled with him along the shores of time, and been paddled with him, from time to time.

I wish I were capable of painting his picture this evening, but it would tax the genius of the Old Masters to paint his picture true to life and do him justice, to put into colors that glow of health and mischievous look, to catch the gleam of his eye and pose of his head, and the general outline of his picturesque person, as he stands barefoot, with hands in his bulging pockets, leaning against the fence debating in his mind, soliloquizing with an earnestness that Hamlet never knew.

To go to school or not to go to school, that's the question, Whether 'tis nobler in the mind to suffer the confinement of the school room, and the platitudes of the teacher,

Or to play hookie and have a good time.

To play hookie and perchance get caught,

Aye, there is the rub.

Observe him please, after his mind is made up, and he has concluded that hookie is the correct thing, with a fishing pole swung over his shoulder and a can of worms in his hand, headed for a pond, little he cares how the world wages or the school runs, so the fish bite.

There is so much of genuine human nature in the make-up of the small boy, he is such a faithful likeness of our dead selves, there hangs about him such a flavor and odor of "Auld Lang Syne" that we fondly take his hand in ours to-night and wander back, in a short season, over the paths trodden by him long ago, and now almost faded with memory, to catch the pulse of the past and to waken in our pulse of the past and to waken in our hearts the echoes of the days that are no more.

The small boy is, in all probability, a prehistoric animal, for we have traces of him at the very dawn of history; we find here and there his footprints along the sands of time; we know they are his, because there is only the impression of three toes, the other two being stubbed and wrapped in cotton. I wonder if any distinguished gentleman present ever stubbed his toe in his youthful days, and said "gee whizz," or words to that effect, more or less.

I do not doubt that he threw rocks over the fence at the apples as they hung in abundance in the Garden of Eden; that he gayed Noah as he wrought on the ark, intimating that in his opinion there wouldn't be much of a shower, but that he afterwards took passage with him in the ark; played with the monkeys, rode the elephants, and slept with the dogs, and used up Noah's supply of worms fishing out of the window; that he was the first to sight and land on Mount Ararat, and finding there a tin can attached to the dog's tail; that he sat upon the blocks of marble and watched, with a critical eye, the construction of the Tower of Babel, and added in no small degree, to the confusion of tongues, by calling out in derision "more mort," that he enjoyed the discomfort of Pharaoh by the plagues; that he took a prominent part in the forty years' march and wanderings of the children of Israel in the wilderness, threw rocks at the quails, greedily gathered and ate more than his share of the manna and was made sick, hence the origin of the expression, which has clung to him to the present day, "ill man, nered," that he entered with ease and glee into the workshop of the women of Sodom, drew pictures of cats and dogs on the walls of the Tabernacle, played leap frog on Sinai, and when, at last, the journeyings were ended and the waves of the Jordan were rolled back, that the children might pass over on dry land, he went either up or down the stream a piece and swam across, in time to be among the first to reach the "Promised Land" and to secure for himself a bunch of the grapes of Eschol. He was present when Joshua commanded the sun to stand still, but was not the son commanded, for Joshua was a better judge of human nature, than to attempt so impossible a task as to compel a small boy to stand still; that he took a hand and blew a horn at the destruction of the walls of Jericho, and in fact, has taken a hand and blown his horn in all of the prominent events of history, sacred or profane, from creation to the present time.

Adam is the only man whose name is recorded in history (with the possible exception of Dr. Mary Walker), who was not at one time, or other, a small boy, and the sequel of Adam's life demonstrates the necessity of that period and its experiences, for had he ever been a small boy, his taste for apples would have been satisfied (in a measure) in youth, and he would have been able to resist the temptation to eat them in his maturer years. The memory of the aches and pains of that formative period, would have nerved him to say NO.

I can claim with perfect candor and truthfulness for my subject, that he "goes all the gates," and climbs all the fences and nearly all of the trees, and quite a few of the lightning rods and telephone poles; I have seen him engaged in a pugilistic encounter at 8 a. m.; in Sunday-school at 9; at teaching a can to a dog's tail at 10; sitting demurely in the family pew and "dreaming dreams, no mortal ever dared to dream before," at 11; eating a meal that would tax the digestive organs of a whale at 12; throwing rocks over the fence at the neighbor's cat at 1; practicing bareback riding on the cow at 2; listening to the story of the good and bad little boy, as read by mother, at 3; walking upon his hands on the stable roof at 4; bruised and bleeding and swathed in bandages at 5; sleeping as sweetly as a babe upon its mother's breast

I have heard it said that inventive genius had never perfected a storage battery and probably never would. I invite the attention of the Scientific World to my subject "The Small Boy." The electric currents are constantly coursing along and through his anatomy; the very earth seems to charge him with this mystic power; when his right foot touches the ground, a positive current is generated, and when his left foot touches, a negative current, and these two are constantly coming into contact, until he becomes "a live wire" indeed. Why I have known him to shock an entire community.

Like death, he has all seasons for his own, but makes a specialty of summer, when green apples are abundant, nor is he a respecter of persons; the high and the low, the rich and the poor are all grieved for his

IF I SHOULD DIE TO-NIGHT...

If I should die to-night,
My friends would look upon my quiet face
Before they laid it in its resting place,
And deem that death had left it all most fair;
And, laying snow-white flowers
Against my hair,
Would smooth it down with tearful tenderness,
And fold my hands with lingering caress—
Poor hands, so empty and so cold to-night!

If I should die to-night,
My friends would call to mind with loving thought,
Some kindly deed the icy hands had wrought,
Some gentle word the frozen lips had said,
Errands on which the willing feet had sped;
The memory of my selfishness and pride,
My hasty words, would all be put aside,
And so I should be loved and mourned to-night.

If I should die to-night,
Even hearts estranged would turn
Once more to me,
Recalling other days remorsefully:
The eyes that chill me with averted glance,
Would look upon me as of yore, perchance,
And soften in the old familiar way,
For who could war with dumb, unconscious clay?

So I might rest, forgiven of all to-night.
Oh, friends! I pray to-night,
Keep not your kisses for my dead, cold brow;
The way is lonely, let me feel them now.
Think gently of me; I am travel-worn;
My faltering feet are pierced with many a thorn.

Forgive, oh, hearts estranged, forgive, I plead!
When dreamless rest is mine I shall not need
The tenderness for which I long to-night.

—Belle Eugenia Smith.

The News—No pure Drug Cough Cure Laws would be needed, if all Cough Cures were like Dr. Shoop's Cough Cure—is and has been for 20 years. The National Law now requires that if any poisons enter into a cough mixture, it must be printed on the label or package.

For this reason mothers, and others, should insist on having Dr. Shoop's Cough Cure. No poison marks on Dr. Shoop's labels—and none in the medicine, else it must by law be on the label. And it's not only safe, but it is said to be by those that know it best, a truly remarkable cough remedy. Take no chance, particularly with your children. Insist on having Dr. Shoop's Cough Cure. Compare carefully the Dr. Shoop package with others and see. No poison marks there! You can always be on the safe side by demanding Dr. Shoop's Cough Cure. Simply refuse to accept any other. ### CHICAGO'S BEAUTIFUL WOMAN

It was the statement of the Chicago Tribune that it had found the most beautiful woman in America and that she is a resident of the Windy City, that aroused pride and resentment in our own midst. This statement was made with the characteristic arrogance of Chicago, and came really in the nature of a challenge to other sections. But the people of the Windy City reckoned without their host.

Other States and other cities and sections may accept this statement as being a fact. Not so with Kentucky. It is a surprising claim, for there are millions of women in our own great country, and the majority of them are beautiful. But the most beautiful of them all are in Kentucky. They are, you know they are and The Courier-Journal knows they are.

It took the Chicago Tribune several months to find the woman who it is now declared is the most beautiful in America. It is confidently believed that no more than a day or so will be necessary to find a Kentucky woman who is the peer of this Chicago paragon of personal charms. But this contest is to be made thorough. It is to be conducted on a fair but sweeping basis, and the pictures of beautiful women from every part of this State are to be submitted in this contest before a final verdict is rendered.

The Frankfort Roundabout

Entered at the postoffice at Frankfort, Kentucky, as second-class mailable matter.

GEO. A. LEWIS, Pro'r and Pub.

FRANKFORT, MARCH 2, 1907.

Y. M. C. A. CONVENTION.

The Best Ever Held by That Body In Late.

The Y. M. C. A. Convention, which had been in session since Friday afternoon, adjourned at 10 o'clock on Sunday night.

It was the largest and best Convention ever held by that organization in the State. Upwards of 150 delegates composed the body. Busy sessions were held Friday afternoon, Saturday morning, afternoon and evening. The pulpits of the different churches were occupied by members of the Association at 11 o'clock on Sunday morning. A meeting was held at the Opera House at 2 o'clock p. m., for men only, addressed by Mr. Dodge. A meeting for boys at the same hour, at the Christian Church, addressed by Mr. Magill. A meeting for ladies, only at the same hour, at the First Baptist Church, addressed by Mr. G. N. Dierck. The final meetings were held at the First Presbyterian Church at 7:30 p. m., which closed up the business proper, and the general round up, at the same church at 8:30 o'clock.

All the addresses were able, attractive and well calculated to do good.

We wish, in especial manner, to commend the earnest, searching and thrilling address of Mr. Dodge, at the Opera House, on Sunday afternoon.

We wish that every man and boy in this whole community could have heard it. It was filled with facts, illustrations and warnings that every young man, especially, ought to know and give good heed to.

A marked feature of the Convention was the singing of the Male Quartette from the Highland Baptist Church, of Louisville.

The songs sung were tender, rich in melody and the truth of the gospel. Verily, it was the "gospel in song."

The delegates expressed themselves as delighted with the cordial hospitality with which they were entertained, and enthusiastic at the future outlook of the organization.

Indeed it was a marvel, considering how many families were suffering from the prevailing influenza, that they were able to do the necessary work at all.

ACCIDENT ON THE L. & N. CUT-OFF.

Late Friday afternoon a passenger train, which was backing to Christiansburg, on the cut-off, when the tender jumped the track, the engine and passenger car following. The engine and tender were overturned, the fireman jumped and escaped, but the engineer was caught under his engine and both legs badly mangled.

All trains were delayed over an hour.

SPLENDID SPEECH.

man. He is out for fun, and if they can serve his purpose, he uses them otherwise, like the Levite, he passes by on the other side.

It is an open question whether he is a beast of burden or bird of prey, but it is a settled fact that he is not always "a thing of beauty, nor is he a joy forever," as many fond parents can testify, but we are prepared to assert without fear of contradiction that Solomon in all his glory and possessions, never had a better time. When he arises in the morning and puts on his boots, he says, go to now, I will have a good time this day, and he generally does. No creaking care stalks, like "Giant Despair," between him and the Palace Beautiful. For him the sun always shines, either in the sky or in his heart. Unlike his brothers of a larger growth, he does not borrow trouble, and worry over petty cares, for he has learned from a marvelous intuition, to take no thought for the morrow, believing, as he does with all of his heart and mind, that the morrow shall take thought for the things of itself; to him, sufficient unto the day is the evil or good thereof.

His observation and philosophy are akin to those of the old negro, who said that he had noticed all of his life that whenever he got through March, he got through the remainder of the year.

He does not lie awake at night worrying over the financial system of the country, nor does he congregate in large numbers on street corners, making exhibition of his dense ignorance on the subject by arguing pro and con; he is, however, in reality, a pronounced monometallicist—for he prefers the nickel to either gold or silver, and uses it almost exclusively as a medium of exchange, and if he could, would use it at the ratio of 16 to 1 times as often as he does.

As a rule, the small boy is not unusually neat, at any rate he is not fastidiously so, and if it be true that "cleanness is next to Godliness," then he is not always next, for, like a true Kentuckian, he is fond of his soil and clings to it with patriotic pride. Like Tom Moore's sun flower, he "turns to his God when he sets, the same face he turned when he arose," without the addition of a drop of water, and in the absence of maternal vigilance, he turns into bed at night with the same feet he turned out when he arose, with the addition of several coats of dirt.

If we consider him in the light of the science of phrenology, the small boy is a wonder; he has on his head, bumps for which that science can not account, and what is more remarkable still, some of these bumps are changeable—for instance, when under parental supervision, his bump of reverence and respect is round and fully developed, at other times it is scarcely discernible to the naked eye, and then again there is the bump of combativeness, barely visible or perceptible to the touch, while in the company of parent or teacher, and yet on the playground, it is as large as his fist.

The small boy is passionately fond of music, not classical, but nature's melodies, a June-bug solo charms him as nothing else can do, give him a plain twine string attached to a June-bug's leg, and the Old Masters never drank deeper, diviner draughts from the fountain of Melody, than he forces from that reluctant and gaudy winged bug. The birds in the trees and the bees in the clover constitute his orchestras, but there are times when the harmony of a hand organ (with a monkey accompaniment) soothes his restless soul as nothing else can do.

Oh glorious days of happy boyhood, filled with pleasure pure and unalloyed, out with top and ball and marbles the livelong day, and home at night with mother. Can we ever forget her good-night kiss? Though all other memories that cluster about the halcyon days of boyhood should fade—the perfume of the flowers; the music of the birds; the days of fun and frolic; of sunshine and happiness; of playmate and sweetheart; of love and contentment; yet, through the maze and the mist of the fading years, the tender memory of that good-night kiss will ever come to our weary brains and hearts, like "the benediction that follows after prayer." When life's pilgrimage is ended, and life's duties are done, and we come at last lifting up our hearts to where they are understood, I can wish no greater boon for any of us than that we may smile back into God's face, with the same pure glad lips that mother used to kiss.

"Ah though we miss all else but this, It is enough."

The small boy is the very embodiment of Charity, for like Charity, he is not puffed up (except immediately after his meals); he vaunteth not himself (unless he is larger than the other boy); he doth not behave himself unseemly (while asleep), and like Charity, he covers a multitude of sins, and yet with all of his faults, we love him still.

Strange as it may seem, when the Master was on earth and was asked by his disciples for a type of the citizenship of the New Jerusalem, he did not point to one of his disciples; He did not point to Peter, of whom He had said, thou art Peter and upon this rock I build my church, but He laid His hands on the head of a little child (in all probability a small boy) and said, of such is the Kingdom of Heaven. Such as these are around us to-day, about the hearthstone, entwined in our affections, and enthroned in our hearts; dreaming of the future, yearning to be men; walking in our foot steps (oh fearful thought). Are we leading them aright?

Is the pathway upward? Here is a raw material out of which the future citizenship of the Nation is to be constructed. What are we doing for his protection? Are we too busy with our plans and schemes and ambitions to give thought to his welfare? Are we standing with idle hands and folded arms, while the gilded dens of vice are luring him to ruin? Shall the sabbon devour forever, and we raise no voice of protest?

This is the raw material out of which the homes of the Commonwealth are (in part) to be constructed. Shall they be Christian homes? Did you ever stop to consider the meaning, to weigh the influence of a Christian home, a home wherein there is erected an altar to the living God; a home wherein Christian parents rear, in the fear and admonition of the Lord, Christian children, who go out into the world to build other Christian homes; here is the first link in an endless chain, here is the beginning of an influence that shall widen and widen until it touches the very shores of time.

There are other homes, constructed out of this "raw material"—homes of sin and sorrow, of degradation and despair. A few squares away, there is a home largely recruited from this raw material, enclosed by stone walls and where the inmates peer through iron bars. An ounce of prevention is worth a pound of cure.

So I plead for the boys to-night—for a greater interest in their welfare—for a broader sympathy with them in their struggles and temptations—for greater generosity in subscribing to the institutions that are working for their uplift. Let us as men (for what are we but boys of a larger growth), whether old men, middle aged men or young men stand by, and extend to the boys a helping hand.

"Then here's to our boyhood, its gold and its gray.

The stars of its winter, the dews of its May.

When we have done with our life's lasting toys,

Dear Father take care of thy children, the boys."

Pleasant to take.

Of Smoking Affected
My Heart

So I Had To Sit Up
To Breathe.

Dr. Miles' Heart Cure
Cured Me.

There is nothing that has a more deleterious effect upon the cardiac or heart nerves than the excessive use of tobacco. Pain and tenderness around the heart, an oppressive feeling in the chest, choking sensation in the throat, discomfort from sleeping on the left side and smothering spells at night when the sufferer has to sit up in bed to breathe are the most common symptoms of a weak heart. Smokers who feel these symptoms and who do not understand their meaning should be warned in time, by the following experience:

"I was greatly troubled with an affection of the heart, due I think to excessive smoking. On writing to you for advice I was directed to begin a course of treatment which included Dr. Miles' Heart Cure, Dr. Miles' Nerve and Nerve and Liver Pills, together with bathing, etc. I faithfully followed the directions given and am pleased to say that my cure is complete and permanent. Before beginning the use of your remedies I was so nervous I could not keep my hands still and suffered greatly from severe pains around the heart. Many nights at night I would be forced to assume a sitting posture to get my breath, and for the time being it would seem as though my heart had stopped beating. From the splendid results achieved in my case I can cheerfully recommend Dr. Miles' Heart Cure, Restorative Nerve and other remedies to all sufferers from heart or nervous troubles."—Yours truly, ELIZABETH HALL, Dothan, Ala.

A CONTEST TO PROVE THE KENTUCKY WOMEN MOST BEAUTIFUL OF ALL.

The Courier-Journal has inaugurated a contest to prove that Kentucky women are the most beautiful in America. This contest is now on and will extend over an indefinite period, or rather, until the most beautiful Kentucky woman has been found and decided upon by a competent Jury of Awards, the members of which will be announced later.

It was through a contest inaugurated several months ago by the Chicago Tribune that the present contest was started. Kentuckians, and for that matter, people everywhere, know that Kentucky has the most beautiful women in America, and that is tantamount to saying the most beautiful in the world. It is one of the most fragrant and historic of all the traditions, love and treasured by the people of this Commonwealth that the women of the Bluegrass State are the peers of all others in the matter of personal charms. Ask the stranger in any country or clime what he knows of the good State of Kentucky, and as he talks of the section itself, he will also speak of that brightest page in the Commonwealth's history: that page which tells of fairest womanhood. And in any council or conversation the world over, where beauty is the theme, there will be found none to galsay or deny Kentucky a proud place among the best for the comeliness and graciousness of nature of her fair daughters.

Cures Woman's Weaknesses.

We refer to that boon to weak, nervous, suffering women known as Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription.

Dr. John Fyfe, one of the Editorial Staff of THE ECLECTIC MEDICAL REVIEW says of Unicorn root (Helleborus Dutoyi) which is one of the chief ingredients of the "Favorite Prescription":

"A remedy which invariably acts as a uterine invigorator. * * * makes for normal activity of the entire reproductive system. He continues 'in Hellenia we have a medication which more fully answers the above purpose than any other drug with which I am acquainted. In the treatment of diseases peculiar to women it is seldom that a case is seen which does not present some indication for this remedial agent.' Dr. Fyfe further says: 'The following are among the leading indications for Helleborus (Unicorn root). Pain or aching in the back, with leucorrhoea; atonic febrile conditions of the reproductive organs of women, mental depression and irritability, associated with chronic diseases of the reproductive organs of women; constant sensation of heat in the region of the kidneys; menorrhagia (flooding), due to a weakened condition of the reproductive system; amenorrhoea (suppressed or absent monthly periods) arising from or accompanying an abnormal condition of the digestive organs and gastric (thin blood) habit; dragging sensations in the extreme lower part of the abdomen.'"

Of Golden Seal root, another prominent ingredient of "Favorite Prescription" Prof. Finley Ellingwood, M. D., of Benning Medical College, Chicago, says: "It is an important remedy in disorders of the womb. In all catarrhal conditions and general enfeeblement it is useful."

Prof. John M. Scudder, M. D., late of Cincinnati, says of Golden Seal root: "In relation to its general effects on the system, there is no medicine in use to which there is such general unanimity of opinion. It is universally acknowledged as the tonic useful in all debilitated states."

Prof. R. Bartholow, M. D., of Jefferson Medical College, says of Golden Seal: "Valuable in uterine hemorrhages, menorrhagia (flooding) and congestive dysmenorrhoea (painful menstruation)."

Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription faithfully represents all the above named ingredients and cures the diseases for which these are recommended.

Buy Furniture Economically.

Extravagance consists in buying the wrong thing at the wrong price.

Economy consists in buying the right thing at the right price.

If you are truly economical you will not buy furniture merely because it is cheap. It should be bought—first for its appropriateness—and second, for its durability.

It will give us pleasure to show you our present offerings in fine and medium priced furniture—the sort that is both appropriate and durable. And we shall also be glad to tell you of our liberal partial payment plan—a little at a time, as your income permits.

DEATH OF MISS HARRIETT BROWN TODD.

On Tuesday morning last Miss Harriett Brown Todd, youngest daughter of the late Mr. John M. and Mrs. Hallie E. Todd, passed away, in Louisville, of consumption.

Miss Todd was born in this city, but had spent the greater part of her life in Louisville.

Naturally of frail and delicate build, yet she was the embodiment of energy and life. Bright and cheery in disposition, notwithstanding the clouds of sorrow and adversity that had hovered so long over life's pathway, she was the marvel of all who knew her.

For many years she was a teacher in the Kentucky Street School, in the city of Louisville, and won the hearts of all her pupils by firm, but gentle, intelligent and kindly rule in her class room.

She was a devout Christian, and had been from childhood a member of the Central Presbyterian Church. Her trust and confidence in her Savior and Redeemer were unflinching as the chill waters flowed to her feet.

Some three years ago she was compelled, by failing health, to resign her position in the city school.

In all the relations of life she was an exemplification of the religion she loved, whether as daughter, sister, relative or friend.

For months she knew that the grim monster was slowly but surely approaching, and welcomed his coming as a friend to bring succor from sorrow and suffering, yet ever bright and cheery.

She is the last of a large family of brothers and sisters, but leaves a nephew, Mr. John T. Bradley, of Jellico, Tenn., and a wide circle of warmly attached relatives in Louisville and this city, to whom her going will bring the keenest sorrow.

The remains were brought here on Wednesday morning and laid to rest by the side of her mother, father, sisters and brothers in our cemetery.

SINGULAR OCCURRENCE.

On July 4, 1906, Mr. Ben Tracey, wife and daughter, of this city, spent the day in Lexington. While out on East Main street, the little girl lost ring, which she was wearing.

One day last week Mr. Tracey was again in Lexington and passed along the same place, when he happened to look down on the pavement, when there was the ring, just as his daughter had dropped it. It had lodged in a seam in the pavement.

It is needless to say that the little one was greatly rejoiced at the finding of the ring.

We doubt if such a thing could ever occur again. Considering the crowds that pass that way every day, the wonder is no one else saw the ring.

BIRTHS.

COLEMAN—In Louisville, on Monday, to Prof. J. Dudley Coleman and wife—a daughter.

Prof. Coleman was formerly Principal of Frankfort City High School. His many friends will rejoice at the advent of the tiny little lady who has blessed his home.

(For the Roundabout.) A COUNTRY CHURCH.

In a pleasant little village

Tho' on no map does it appear,

And so for sundry reasons,

Shall it be nameless here,

Is a little white church building,

Where many feet have trod

The pathway to the doorway

Of this little church of God.

'Tis a peaceful looking structure

Within the churchyard's green

And the Sabbath sun shines brightly

Where all seems so serene.

But when the doors are opened

And in the people throng,

It doesn't take a moment

To guess there's something wrong.

For the amen corner's empty,

The deacons all look glum,

And many folks are absent.

Who generally always come,

And we wonder what's the matter

For we're not right in the swim,

And the preacher all unconscious

Announces the opening hymn.

And we scarce can keep from smiling

At the humor of the thing.

For half the choir is absent

And the other half won't sing.

But some one to the rescue

Flutters in and fills the breach,

And after that a prayer is said

Then Brother — begins to preach.

After the Lord's Supper

Comes another faltering tune,

But we notice half the members

With the others won't commune,

But as they sing the closing hymn

We miss the contribution plate,

So when the service closes

We pass out by the gate.

And ask one of the knowing ones

What might the trouble be,

"It's time to call a preacher,

But no two will agree."

But who or what the wranglers want,

And why they lose their tempers so,

And who or what would suit them

We don't believe they really know.

And so we pass on thinking

As we leave the house of God,

The only noncommittants

Are those beneath the sod,

And we who are not "in it"

Look on and see the fun,

Wouldn't the Dear Rev. be a dandy

Who could please them every one?

They've come to us in politics

Support the nominee

For there is no majority

Where no two will agree. —L.

BROUGHT HERE FOR BURIAL.

The body of Mrs. Susan H. Venable, wife of Rev. Joseph G. Venable, of Mahomet, Ill., was brought here on Tuesday and interred in our cemetery.

Mrs. Venable was a Miss Hahn, of Versailles, and was a sister-in-law of Mrs. W. T. Reading.

DEATHS.

CHAMBERS—In this city on yesterday, Miss Lizzie Chambers, of pneumonia.

PENN—In this city, on yesterday, Miss Lou Ann Penn, aged 33 years, of consumption.

CHAMBERS—On Sunday night, in this city, Mrs. Elizabeth Chambers, aged 68 years, of pneumonia.

COUNTRY FIRE.

The residence of Mr. Luke Stafford, known as the Gen. Peter Dudley place, lying three miles from the city, on the Versailles pike, was destroyed by fire on Sunday afternoon last.

The house was a large one, and Mr. Stafford was using several of the rear rooms for stripping his tobacco, which, together with nearly everything in the house was lost.

In the long ago this house was famous as the scene of old time Kentucky hospitality. Gen. Dudley was a wealthy man and resided in the city during the winter (in the house on St. Clair street demolished to make way for Messrs. R. Rogers & Sons big store) and at this country place in the summer.

Mr. Stafford left, in addition to his household goods and tobacco, all his meat, lard, etc., making his loss a very serious one.

FREIGHT TRAIN DERAILED.

The afternoon freight train on the F. & C. Railway was derailed near Stamping Ground, on Monday. Several cars left the track. No one was injured. Traffic was suspended for several hours, while the track was being cleared.

STAMPING GROUND.

Miss Carrie Triplett was the guest of friends in Georgetown last week.

Col. R. S. Sprake was the guest of relatives in Lexington last week.

Dr. P. H. Crutchfield was summoned to Wilmore, on Wednesday, by the death of his father, Mr. Mordecai Crutchfield. This venerable gentleman had reached the ripe age of 83 years.

Quite a number of families are in bad shape by reason of the fact that every member is laid up with grippe, colds, etc.

A serious wreck occurred, two miles west of this place, on Monday afternoon, on the F. & C. Railway. Five cars of a freight train left the track. The track was blocked so that no trains could pass that night. Traffic was resumed the next morning, however.

Quite a large quantity of tobacco is being received at the pooling warehouses, graded and stored.

The members of the A. S. E. are very enthusiastic over the outlook. New members are joining and the crop of 1907 is being signed up right along.

Under the recent act of Congress Elder John Foster, of Stamping Ground, will receive a pension of $20 per month on account of service in the Mexican War. There is only one other Mexican soldier (Mr. Harvey Wolfe, of Sadleville), now living in this county.

Y. M. C. A. BANQUET.

On Friday night last the Ladies' Auxiliary of the Y. M. C. A. gave a banquet to the delegates and members of the Y. M. C. A. Convention, in the Sunday-school rooms of the First Presbyterian Church.

Hon. R. P. Ernst, of Covington, presided as Toastmaster, and called upon Judge J. P. Hobson to invoke the Divine blessing.

Owing to the illness of Rev. Chas. R. Hudson, of this city, who was to have delivered the address of welcome, Rev. J. M. Severance was called upon to perform that duty, which he did in his most inimitable and felicitous manner, putting every one in a receptive mood for the speeches to which were to follow.

Mr. P. C. Dix, Assistant State Secretary, presided in behalf of the Convention felicitous words.

A male Quartette from the Highland Baptist Church, of Louisville, rendered several delightful pieces of music, which were loudly encored.

Toastmaster Ernst then introduced Mr. W. O. Davis, of Versailles, who had as his theme "Our War Material—The Small Boy."

Mr. Davis' address sparkled with wit and fun and was the very best address which it has ever been our pleasure to hear from him.

Wit seems to flow from the end of his tongue as naturally as water to run down hill, and he kept the audience in roars of laughter from start to finish. [See this address in another place—Ed.]

Interspersed with it were some pointed and touching remarks which were no less apt and impressive.

The Quartette rendered other selections of music, which were inspiring and delightful.

The Toastmaster then introduced Mr. G. N. Biers, of Dayton, Ohio, who made an address of earnestness and power, upon the subject "Our opportunities and Responsibilities," which went right down to the roof of the subject and emphasized the opportunities for good and the accountability of Christian business men for using those opportunities. The address had fine effect as was shown by the undivided attention given its delivery.

Toastmaster Ernst then introduced Mr. S. W. Magill, General Secretary of the Tennessee State Convention, who made a short and stirring talk upon subjects of general utility in the Association work. His remarks were impromptu, as Rev. Dr. F. W. Hinmitt, of Central University, was to have made the closing address, but was detained and did not arrive until Saturday.

Just prior to the benediction Mr. Ernst called upon the audience to arise while he proposed a toast to the ladies, as follows:

"Here's to the ladies—
We can't always live without them.
We can't always live with them—
God bless them."

The benediction was pronounced by Prof. Lewis, and the big and enthusiastic crowd slowly dispersed.

The menu, as furnished by the ladies, was as near perfection as Frankfort ladies know so well how to make it. It was dainty and appetizing, and disappeared rapidly from the long tables, which were beautifully arranged and decorated, lighted with candles and ornamented with fragrant cut flowers.

Altogether it was an occasion long to be remembered with pleasure and profit.

ROBBINS TO TRY POWERS.

So it seems, contrary to all general belief and against his own statement, that Judge J. E. Robbins has been appointed to again try Mr. Caleb Powers, in the Scott Circuit Court. Judge Robbins' rulings in that case the Court of Appeals held were more erroneous even than were Judge Cantrell's.

CANDIDATE FOR REPRESENTATIVE.

TIVE.
Mr. Jas. T. Buford, former County Attorney, has announced himself as a candidate for Representative from this county.

WAR INCIDENT.

War is not always given visaged, as an incident in the life of the late Capt. C. W. Merchant proves. As is known Capt. Merchant was born and raised in Lexington, going from that place into the Regular Army.

On one occasion Capt. Merchant became separated from his command and was captured by Gen. John H. Morgan, of the Confederate Army. When he was brought before Gen. Morgan, and it was learned by him that Merchant was a Lexington boy, he at once released him unconditionally and gave him money with which to reach his command.

Later Capt. Merchant was within a few yards of Gen. Morgan, in a battle in Tennessee, and could easily have killed the Southern leader, as he was completely in his power. He permitted him to go away and escape. When questioned by his superior officer as to his conduct, he at once related the incident, and the officer heartily commended him for his chivalrous course.

HOW TO REMAIN YOUNG.

To continue young in health and strength, do as Mrs. N. F. Rowan, McDonough, Ga., did. She says: "Three bottles of Electric Bitters cured me of chronic liver and stomach trouble."

Rheumatism

I have found a tried and tested cure for Rheumatism! Not a remedy that will straighten the twisted limbs of chronic cripples, nor turn bony curbs back to flesh again. That is impossible. I can now surely kill the pains and cause of a deplorable disease.

In Germany—with a Chemist in the City of Munich—I found the last ingredient with which Dr. Shoop's Rheumatic Remedy was made perfected, dependable prescription. Without a last ingredient, I successfully treated many cases of Rheumatism; but now, at last, I have found the cure for this heretofore dread disease. Those and the granular stones found in Rheumatic Blood, seem to dissolve and pass away under the action of this remedy as easily as does sugar when added to pure water, at which, when dissolved, those poisonous wastes pass from the system, and the cause of rheumatism is gone forever. There is now no need—no actual cause to suffer longer with a help. We sell, and in confidence recommend complicated with such an unhealthy condition of the blood that my skin turned red as flannel. I am now 20 years younger than before I took Electric Bitters. I can now do all my work with ease and assist in my husband's store." Guaranteed at all Drug Stores. Price 50 cents.

HON. SAM'L H. STONE CHOSEN.

U. S. District Judge A. M. J. Cochran has chosen Hon. Sam'l H. Stone, former State Auditor, as U. S. Commissioner to hear the case of the State R. R. Commission against the L. & N. and I. C. R. R. Cos. The case covers the freight rates now charged by these companies. Mr. Stone is well fitted for the work.

BUYS ANOTHER FARM.

Mr. Thos. E. Kenney, the sawmill owner of this city, has purchased the farm of Mr. A. D. Calvert, lying on Main Elkhorn, near Knight's Bridge, containing 76 acres. The larger part of the farm is covered with virgin forest. The price paid was $6,000. Mr. Kenney will cut the timber and saw it up at his mill.

SUBURBAN GROWTH.

Now that the Frankfort and Versailles Traction line is an assured fact, and the new glass factory and canning factory are certainities, there are any number of neat and comfortable homes being built along the suburban line and at Thorn Hill and adjacent territory.

What Frankfort has needed for years was more factories and lots less of politics and politicians.

WELL KNOWN LADY DIES.

Mrs. Letitia B. Robb, the widow of the late Wm. N. Robb, died yesterday afternoon at 1 o'clock from the infirmities of old age. The funeral services will be held at the residence, eight miles from Lexington, on the Newtown pike, this afternoon at 3 o'clock, and the interment will take place in the family burying ground at the home place. The Rev. C. T. Thompson will officiate, and the pall bearers will be A. J. Gorham, J. B. Gorham, Thomas H. Clay, Chris Kiser, John Stevenson, Arthur Peter and Hugh Peter.—Lexington Herald, Feb. 28.

This lady has a number of relatives in this city.

SAVED HER SON'S LIFE.

The happiest mother in the little town of Ava, Mo., is Mrs. S. Ruppee. She writes: "One year ago my son was down with such serious lung trouble that our physician was unable to help him; when, by our druggist's advice, I began giving him Dr. King's New Discovery, and I soon noticed improvement. I kept this treatment up for a few weeks when he was perfectly well. He has worked steadily since at carpenter work. Dr. King's New Discovery saved his life." Guaranteed best cough and cold cure by all druggists. 50c and $1.00. Trial bottle free.

BIG SALE OF LUMBER.

The W. P. Brown Lumber Co., of Louisville, has made several big purchases of lumber in this city this week.

They purchased of Mr. Thos. E. Kenney something over 2,000,000 feet at a handsome price, which, however, is private.

They also purchased all the lumber of Compton Bros., which will foot up something over $75,000.

Who says Frankfort is not a big lumber market?

KENTUCKY-JAMESTOWN NOTES.

Active Work in Progress Here and Elsewhere for the Big World's Fair.

A whirlwind canvass for funds to provide for Kentucky's participation in the Jamestown Exposition is now in progress in Louisville under the auspices of a committee appointed by the Board of Trade. Excellent progress is reported and it is believed that by the end of the week the Falls City will have raised her share of the sum asked by Kentucky Commission of the entire State. Col. J. Stoddard Johnston, president of the State Commission, declares Kentucky has the finest site and will erect the most unique State building on the Exposition grounds. Subscriptions to the State fund are solicited from citizens in every section of Kentucky.

It will be only two months from Tuesday, Feb. 26, before the gates of the Exposition will be thrown open. Actual work in connection with Kentucky's exhibit at the World's Fair has been progressing nicely. Two car loads of timber for use in the construction of the Fort of Boonesboro, Kentucky's building at the Fair, are now on their way to Norfolk. The second car shipped was filled with clapboards which will be used in making the roofs on the cabins of the Fort.

There is said to be every assurance that the old frigate "Constitution," more commonly known as "Old Ironsides" will join in the naval demonstration at the Jamestown Exposition. It will be used a portion of the time as a training ship for the naval cadets from Annapolis. The historic old ship is now being prepared at the Charlestown Navy Yard near Boston. Wisconsin is one of the latest States to fall into line with legislative appropriation for a State Building and exhibit at the Exposition. The State Legislature has appropriated $25,000 for Wisconsin's participation.

Although the Legislature of Georgia appropriated $35,000 for a State Building and exhibit at the World's Fair, this sum is being largely supplemented by the various cities of the State. The cases for Kentucky's mineral exhibit have been ordered and are now nearing completion. The mineral display will be made under the direction of Prof. C. J. Norwood, of Lexington, Director of Mineral Exhibits on the State Commission. It is the intention to exhibit samples of every mineral found in Kentucky and an excellent display will be made of the various clays and building stones which abound in this State.

Announcement comes from Norfolk that all of the large Exhibit Palaces are practically completed. The States Exhibit Building and Mines & Metallurgy Building are now ready to receive displays. In each of these buildings Kentucky is to have space.

A progress map just issued by the Exposition Company, prominently displays the site which has been assigned Kentucky for her State Building. The Kentucky Building will set in the edge of a large grove of native pines. The front of the stockade is to be built over the sands of the seashore and the rear portion will encompass some of the trees of the pine forest. Connecticut enjoys the distinction of receiving the first installment permit in the States Exhibit Building. Maryland was given permit No. 2;

Virginia, permit No. 3, and Louisiana, permit No. 4. The permit for Kentucky's exhibit will be issued as soon as the exhibit is started from this State.

THOMAS NELSON PAGE ON THE NEGRO QUESTION.

In the March McClure's there is a note-worthy article on the Negro Question by Thomas Nelson Page. Under the title of "The Great American Question—The Special Plea of a Southerner," he deals with the subject in a distinguished manner, as the following extracts from his introduction show:

There are some things so well understood by those who know the negroes, as to appear to them almost truisms. For example:

That the white race is superior to the negro race; not accidentally and because of superior training, but inherently and fundamentally.

That in certain things negroes differ widely among themselves; for example, in temper, character, training, manner, temperament. But that in certain respects, all, or nearly all negroes, have the same race characteristics; as Indians, Chinese, Caucasians and other races have them. . . .

That the negroes understand by "social equality," for the most part, one thing only: the right to stand with white women on precisely the same ground as that on which white men stand with them. . . .

That there is a wide difference at present between the point of view of the great body of the Northerners and the entire body of the Southerners as to the negro; in this, that Northerners espouse the cause of the negroes as a race, but dislike negroes individually; while Southerners do not dislike negroes individually, but oppose them as a race. And that this difference is due to conditions and not to basic principles. . . .

There is another vital fact not generally known to Southerners: that one of the chief causes, if not the chief cause at present, of the feeling at the North in favor of the negro is the violence so often directed against negroes at the South. There is quite as much violence against them in some other parts of the country, in proportion to the colored population, as at the South; but for reasons not necessary to discuss here, this is not taken into account. The front of the century falls on the South, and the South on every account, but especially for its own sake, ought to put a stop to it with relentless hand, or else make it clear to the rest of the world why it is not done.

STRANGE ADVICE!

Dr. G. G. Green gives alert personal attention to his great humanitarian contract.

In our Almanac for many years past we have given unusual advice to those afflicted with coughs, colds, throat or lung troubles or consumption. We have told them if they did not receive any special benefit after the use of one 75-cent size bottle of German Syrup, to consult their doctor. We did not ask them or urge them to use a large number of bottles, as is the case in the advertising of many other remedies. Our confidence in German Syrup makes it possible for us to give such advice. We know by the experience of over 35 years that one 75-cent bottle of German Syrup will speedily relieve or cure the worst coughs, colds, bronchitis or lung troubles—and that, even in bad cases of consumption, one large bottle of German Syrup will work wonders. (New trial bottles, 25c; regular size, 75c. At all druggists.)
